CL/SuperSession Messages-- Turning the Function Off and On

Users who logon to IDMS, CICS or TSO through CL/SuperSession may experience problems when using File Transfer through TSO or building screens through IDMS or CICS. Online screens you are building with IDMS or CICS can be destroyed when the process is interrupted with a SuperSession message. TSO File Transfers can abort because of a SuperSession message.

To avoid one or both of these problems, you can disable the message function and stop the immediate broadcast of SuperSession messages while you are building screens or transferring files--or at any other time you choose. Then you can enable the message function when receiving messages is no longer hazardous to your processing. You do this by creating triggers. These triggers are like those already available in SuperSession--such as the screen lock, VL--except that you define them yourself.

To create triggers that disable and enable the immediate broadcast of SuperSession messages:

1. Select Options from the CL/SuperSession Main Menu.
2. At the Options menu, press Enter to select Option 1 - Update Triggers. A window lists your current triggers.
3. Use Tab to position the cursor at the point where you want the new trigger to appear (it will be inserted below your cursor position). Type a for "add trigger" and press Enter to display the Add Trigger window.

4. Fill in the following, using Tab to move from field to field. Do not press Enter until all fields are filled in correctly.

PHRASE..... type your trigger, such as =msgoff or =nomsg and press Tab
KEY..... type ENTER and press Tab
DIALOG NAME.. type IMBCOFF and press Enter

Begin the trigger phrase with "="; then use any sequence of characters you choose. (Note that "\ " is reserved for CL/SuperSession.) If you use a PF key or any other application function key, CL/SuperSession will always intercept the keystroke and execute the trigger command rather than passing the keystroke to your application program.

5. Add a second trigger that you can use to enable immediate receipt of CL/SuperSession messages. Repeat Step 3, above, and fill in the Add Trigger window fields as follows:

PHRASE..... type your trigger, such as =msgon and press Tab
KEY..... type ENTER and press Tab
DIALOG NAME.. type IMBCON and press Enter

6. If you made a mistake or want to change a trigger after you have pressed Enter, position the cursor next to the trigger you want to change, type m for "modify" and press Enter. Change the trigger information by typing over the current entry(ies). Press Enter when all entries are correct.

7. Press F12 to return to the SuperSession main menu.

You can issue a trigger from any input field on any screen except the SuperSession main menu. For example, you could type =nomsg and press Enter in any command input field within your application before starting to build an online screen. Be sure the cursor is at the beginning of the field and remember that triggers are "case sensitive." That is, if you create the trigger with lower case letters, you must use lower case letters to issue it.

Once you enable the message function again, you will begin receiving messages, but will not receive any messages sent while the function was disabled. If you are unsure whether message broadcast is enabled or disabled, just type the trigger that you want to have in effect.

VSAM Alternate Indexes

Do you define alternate indexes (AIX's) on your VSAM clusters? Is your base cluster large? If you answer "YES" to these questions, Technical Services has an article from the ENTERPRISE SYSTEM JOURNAL discussing a new way to build AIX's. This new method will reduce the time and resources needed to rebuild an AIX over a large VSAM base cluster. For a copy of this article, contact Technical Services at 444-2860.
